AALRR Repeats Recognition on Midsize Hot List by National Law Journal

Cerritos, CA (April 8, 2013)--The National Law Journal has again recognized Atkinson, Andelson, Loya, Ruud & Romo as one of 20 midsize law firms for inclusion on their 2013 "Hot List." "The National Law Journal's Midsize Hot List includes 20 law firms that are no way stuck in the shadows cast by giant competitors. As clients demand better value for their legal spend and potential laterals more satisfaction from their careers, these firms know they're in a good spot. They also know that it takes keen business strategy to capitalize on that position." (April 8, 2013, Midsize Hot List, The National Law Journal)

"We are thrilled, to again make the "Hot List" as one of the 20 firms recognized by The National Law Journal," says Chief Operating Officer, Robert L. Wenzel. "Our diversified practice, adaption to changes in the legal market, and creation of subpractice groups allows for the very best service for our clients."

The 2013 Midsize Hot List is a special report that spotlights 20 innovative law firms from across the nation with 50 to 150 lawyers. The April 8th issue of The National Law Journal, which contains the "Midsize Hot List" special report, is available online at www.nlj.com.

Established in 1979, AALRR is a full-service firm with over 140 attorneys serving California employers from seven offices throughout the state, including Cerritos, Fresno, Irvine, Pleasanton, Riverside, Sacramento, and San Diego. The firm provides practical legal solutions in the areas of employment, labor, construction, education, real estate, general business and business litigation, corporate, taxation, bankruptcy, and immigration.
