Pasadena Unified School District Students
Visit Atkinson, Andelson, Loya, Ruud & Romo

Cerritos, Calif. — On Tuesday, October 28, 2014 Atkinson, Andelson, Loya, Ruud & Romo (“AALRR”) hosted 20 students from the Law & Service Academy at Pasadena High School as part of the firm’s student enrichment program. The students visited AALRR’s Cerritos office, where they were able to interact with attorneys, tour the office and various corporate departments, participate in mock presentations, listen to attorneys describe what led them to legal careers, and partake in a question and answer session with participating attorneys.

AALRR is devoted to student success and promoting achievement, and is pleased to be able to present this opportunity to the Pasadena Unified School District’s students. James Baca, Education Law Practice Group Chair, commented, “Not all students have the same backgrounds when it comes to learning about potential careers. We are thrilled to host these students and help them to understand what it is like, and what it takes, to become an attorney.”
